In Love With Life: Reflections On Friedrich Nietzsche's Thus Spake Zarathustra

Synopsis

In his preface to Ecce Homo, Friedrich Nietzsche says: "With [Thus Spoke Zarathustra] I have given mankind the greatest present that has ever been made to it so far. This book, with a voice bridging centuries, is not only the highest book there is, the book that is truly characterized by the air of the heights; the whole fact of man lies beneath it at a tremendous distance; it is also the deepest, born out of the innermost wealth of truth, an inexhaustible well to which no pail descends without coming up again filled with gold and goodness." • Perhaps only a contemporary mystic like Osho could truly understand what Nietzsche meant by this statement. In Love with Life shares Osho's understanding of both Nietzsche the man and of his seminal work, with extraordinary clarity and relevance to readers in the 21st century. Here, the reader learns much about the mysterious and revolutionary Persian mystic Zarathustra (Zoroaster), whom Nietzsche chose as a spokesperson. The result is an enchanting journey through a world where life is celebrated, not renounced, and where timeless truths prevail over the lies and distortions that continue to cripple our efforts to become healthy and whole.

After the second World War, Albert Camus the poet said, "The trouble with Europe is that it has lost its love for life." In the commentaries of the Indian mystic Osho on Friedrich Nietzsche's Thus Spake Zarathustra, the modern European may find some inspiration for a new religion of love for life. Peter Sloterdijk, German Philosopher

Osho never ceases to uplift and inspire the soul to ascend to a higher strata. I was having trouble dissecting Nietzsche's "Thus Spake Zarathustra" and this was a huge help in comprehending and thus appreciating the work. I love them both! I wish they were both still living...

This book has helped me to have a different perspective on life.
